1. Background and context

UN Women is the UN lead agency for gender equality and the empowerment of women. UN Women in collaboration with IOM, UNICEF and the Government of Rwanda through the Ministry of Justice, Ministry of Gender and Family Promotion, Rwanda National Police and the Directorate General of Immigration and Emigration is implementing a joint project entitled” Improving knowledge, enforcement and coordination in counter trafficking” funded by USAID.

Victims of trafficking are often in need of significant assistance. For many, the trafficking has resulted in abuse, trauma, physical and psychological harm as a consequence of the violations they have been subjected to. Because many women and children are trafficked for purposes of sexual exploitation, including forced prostitution and pornography, social stigma that may not only hamper social reintegration into society, but also significantly lower the chance of successful recovery from trafficking. This increases the risk of being re-trafficked. Thus, it is important to deliver comprehensive immediate assistance alongside adequate referral and reintegration services that target physical, psychological, economic and social rehabilitation. This is done mainly through Isange One stop Centres that provide holistic 24hours assistance to victims including medical, psychological, forensic, judicial and legal services.
